More than superheroes: Empowering women and advancing equity in the health workforce

Dr. Julia Smith has conducted research with thousands of health-care providers over the past three years. She shares her findings around gender equality, moral distress, and resilience in the health-care workforce as we work to #EmbraceEquity.

Dr. Smith is an assistant professor in SFU's Faculty of Health Sciences and leads the Health and Social Inequities Theme with the Pacific Institute on Pathogens, Pandemics and Society. She co-led the Gender and COVID-19 Project, which examined the gender effects of the pandemic response across 12 countries.
